KIM CATTRALL SUPPORTS TOMORROW'S STARS AT BENEFIT EVENING

The glamorous Kim Cattrall was Guest of Honour at an exclusive gala evening on 8th February hosted by the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art (LAMDA), in association with InStyle magazine and Quintessentially, the prestigious concierge club.

In benefit of LAMDA, an educational charity, this special evening began with a performance of the critically acclaimed Whose Life Is It Anyway? at the Comedy Theatre, featuring Ms Cattrall and LAMDA alumni Janet Suzman and Alexander Siddig. The evening was generously sponsored by Perrier Jouët Champagne and by internationally renowned jewellers Adler, with stunning jewellery loaned to both Ms Cattrall and Ms Suzman to wear on the night and donated to the luxury auction.

The performance was followed by a private supper with Ms Cattrall and the entire cast in attendance, as well as other award-winning LAMDA alumni including Brian Cox, Patricia Hodge, David Oyelowo and Kananu Kirimi. Other special guests included Tammy Perry and Nicki Browes of InStyle, Dallas Smith of Peters Fraser & Dunlop, and Annoushka Ducas and John Ayton of Links of London, another evening sponsor.

The evening also included a short, luxury auction, with special items donated by Links of London, Tanner Krolle and Jaguar, as well as a stunning pink sapphire ring from Adler and a magnum of Perrier Jouët Belle Époque 1996 vintage champagne.

Ms Cattrall is no stranger to LAMDA, having studied and completed a number of LAMDA Examinations before embarking on her professional career. Therefore she was delighted to be able to help those currently training for a career on the stage or screen through this event. Expressing his appreciation for her support, LAMDA Principal, Peter James commented:

We are very grateful to Kim. It is so important to the Academy when those who have trained with us or achieved success with LAMDA Examinations continue to support all that we do so that other talented individuals may follow in their accomplished footsteps.
