LAMDA STAGE MANAGEMENT AND TECHNICAL THEATRE OPEN DAY 2005

On Saturday 12th February 2005, the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art (LAMDA) will be hosting its Stage Management and Technical Theatre Open Day. Held annually at LAMDA's own MacOwan Theatre in Earl's Court, this event is an exciting alternative to the traditional Careers Fair for those interested in working backstage; offering an unparalleled opportunity to participate in practical workshops in all aspects of technical theatre. Whether one is interested in becoming a stage manager, a lighting designer or simply wants to find out more about the type of training that LAMDA can offer, the Academy's Technical Theatre Open Day is renowned for providing both the advice necessary to make informed career choices and a fun day out.

LAMDA is one of the oldest and most prestigious drama schools in the United Kingdom, with an international reputation. This has been recently reinforced with the Academy's inclusion into the Conservatoire for Dance and Drama (CDD). This year also marks the 40th Anniversary of LAMDA's flagship Two Year Stage Management and Technical Theatre Course – a vocational course synonymous with high-quality training and an outstanding alumni employment record within the entertainment industry.

Further details on how to register for our Stage Management and Technical Theatre Open Day can be obtained at www.lamda.org.uk. Doors open at 2pm and places are limited. Those interested in attending should book now to avoid disappointment.
